

TABLE OF CONTENTS – Problem-Based Feline Medicine

Chapter 1 - How to make a problem-based diagnosis

Chapter 2 - The cat with acute sneezing or nasal discharge

Chapter 3 - The cat with signs of chronic nasal disease. (chronic > 3 weeks duration)

Chapter 4 - The cat with stridor or stertor

Chapter 5 - The dyspneic or tachypneic cat

Chapter 6 - The cat with hydrothorax

Chapter 7 - The coughing cat

Chapter 8 - The cyanotic cat

Chapter 9 - The cat with abnormal heart sounds and/or an enlarged heart

Chapter 10 - The cat with tachycardia, bradycardia or an irregular rhythm

Chapter 11 - The cat straining to urinate

Chapter 12 - The incontinent cat

Chapter 13 - The cat with discolored urine

Chapter 14 - The cat with inappropriate urination

Chapter 15 - The cat with polyuria and polydipsia

Chapter 16 - The cat with acute depression, anorexia or dehydration

Chapter 17 - The cat with weight loss and a good appetite

Chapter 18 - The thin, inappetent cat

Chapter 19 - The pyrexia cat

Chapter 20 - The cat with enlarged lymph nodes

Chapter 21 - The yellow cat or cat with elevated liver enzymes

Chapter 22 - The cat with abdominal distention or abdominal fluid

Chapter 23 - The bleeding cat

Chapter 24 - The anemic cat

Chapter 25 - The cat with polycythemia

Chapter 26 - The cat with hyperlipidemia

Chapter 27 - The cat with salivation

Chapter 28 - The cat with bad breath or oral lesions

Chapter 29 - The cat with signs of regurgitation (acute or chronic)

Chapter 30 - The cat with signs of acute vomiting

Chapter 31 - The cat with signs of chronic vomiting

Chapter 32 - The cat with signs of acute small bowel diarrhea

Chapter 33 - The cat with signs of chronic small bowel diarrhea

Chapter 34 - The cat with signs of large bowel diarrhea (acute and chronic)

Chapter 35 - The constipated or straining cat

Chapter 36 - The cat with seizures, circling and/or changed behavior

Chapter 37 - The cat with stupor or coma

Chapter 38 - The cat with a head tilt, vestibular ataxia or nystagmus

Chapter 39 - The cat with tremor or twitching

Chapter 40 - The cat with anisocoria or abnormally dilated or constricted pupils

Chapter 41 - The cat with neck ventroflexion

Chapter 42 - The weak and ataxic or paralyzed cat

Chapter 43 - The cat with ataxia without weakness

Chapter 44 - The cat with generalized weakness

Chapter 45 - The cat with lameness

Chapter 46 - The cat with aggression

Chapter 47 - The cat with anxiety-related behavior problems

Chapter 48 - The cat with miliary dermatitis

Chapter 49 - The cat with pruritus without miliary dermatitis

Chapter 50 - The cat with alopecia

Chapter 51 - The cat with skin lumps and bumps

Chapter 52 - The cat with non-healing wounds

Chapter 53 - The cat with paw or pad problems

Chapter 54 - The fading kitten

Chapter 55 - The infertile queen

Chapter 56 - The cat with vaginal discharge

Chapter 57 - The blind cat or cat with retinal disease

Chapter 58 - The cat with a red coloration of the globe

Chapter 59 - The cat with ocular discharge or changed conjunctival appearance

Chapter 60 - The cat with abnormalities confined to the cornea

Chapter 61 - The cat with a cloudy eye

Chapter 62 - The cat with abnormal pupil size, shape or response

Chapter 63 - The cat with abnormal iris appearance

Chapter 64 - The cat with abnormal globe position or size

Chapter 65 - The cat with abnormal eyelid appearance

Chapter 66 - The cat with an abnormal third eyelid

Chapter 67 - Special considerations related to drug use in cats

Chapter 68 - Drug therapy in cats: A comprehensive list of recommended dosing regimens

Drug index

Subject Index.